Meeting Youth Needs in the 21st Century: Youth Work, Young People and Youth Policy (Announcement and Call for Papers)

The School of Applied Social Science in UCC will host an international conference on Wednesday 12th May 2010.

The aim of the conference is to bring researchers, youth workers, volunteers, young people, youth organisations, youth policy makers, students and others interested in the needs of young people together to exchange ideas, debate policy and offer viewpoints on a range of interlinked issues:

- Issues in current practice in working with young people
 - New models and future challenges for youth work
 - Youth policy in the 21st century
- The role of youth organisations and associations in Irish society
 - Issues facing young people today

FREE conference registration offer for readers of Practice Links.

We hope that the conference will be a fruitful meeting ground for a variety of perspectives on youth work, young people and youth policy - and will contribute meaningfully to vital debates on these issues.

Submissions for paper presentations are welcome until Friday, the 16th of April 2010 to youthconference@ucc.ie.

WE WELCOME PAPERS FROM RESEARCHERS, PRACTITIONERS, POLICY MAKERS AND STUDENTS.

Please go to <http://www.ucc.ie/en/appsoc/resconf/YouthPolicy/bodytext.95675.en.html> for the call for papers, a conference programme and detailed information.

We are keen to encourage strong practitioner participation and therefore attendance, including lunch, will be free to readers of Practice Links. Early registration would be appreciated, for catering and accommodation purposes. Please register by sending your name and contact details to: youthconference@ucc.ie

Decisions, Assessment, Risk and Evidence in Social Work

Mon 28 & Tue 29 June 2010, Templeton Hotel, Templepatrick, Northern Ireland
(convenient to Belfast International Airport)

Decision making is of crucial importance to the social work profession. Lives and liberty depend on decisions undertaken in crises and high risk situations. We support clients in risk-taking decision making. Professional judgments have to be based explicitly on evidence and sound reasoning, utilising robust assessment tools and collaborative (and sometimes contested) decision making processes.

This conference is designed to bring together researchers, educators, policy makers and senior practitioners to share current developments and to promote collaborative research, development and teaching initiatives to improve professional knowledge and skills for the ultimate benefit of clients and families. Further details are being added incrementally to our website <http://www.socsci.ulster.ac.uk/spri/dare/> or contact Mrs Sharon Lucas sa.lucas@ulster.ac.uk telephone (+44) (0) 28 9036 6554.

A Practical Guide to Caring for Children and Teenagers with Attachment Difficulties.

Chris Taylor.

February 2010, 224 pages, paperback.

ISBN: 9781849050814.

Find out more and buy this book: <http://www.jkp.com/new/9781849050814>

This book guides childcare professionals through attachment theory and provides techniques for caring for children with attachment difficulties. It explains what attachment is, what different patterns of attachment look like in children and young people, how early attachment experiences affect their lives, and how this understanding can help childcare workers to develop therapeutic ways of caring. By understanding these issues, childcare workers are better equipped to help and support the troubled children they care for. This book shows how to promote recovery through secure base experiences in a therapeutic environment and provides solutions and methods to tackle challenging and problem behaviour, anger and the effects of trauma in children with attachment problems.

This essential book will be invaluable to professionals such as residential carers, social workers and foster carers who work in a therapeutic environment with vulnerable and troubled children and young people.

A Practical Guide to Outcome Evaluation.

Liz Hoggarth and Hilary Comfort.

March 2010, 224 pages, paperback.

ISBN: 9781849050371.

Find out more and buy this book: <http://www.jkp.com/new/9781849050371>

For those involved in commissioning and running projects working with people, measuring performance and assessing outcomes are an essential part of applying for and maintaining funding, and a way of demonstrating the project's achievements. This versatile 'how to' book guides you through the process of evaluating your project in order to improve funding applications and build the case for your project's survival. The guidance in this book will help you to set out what the aims and projected outcomes of your project are, how these will be achieved, and shows you how to capture evidence for outcomes. To cater for readers working in different settings, a broad range of case examples is used including youth groups with at-risk young people, a refuge for women who have suffered domestic violence, a road safety education programme and midwives encouraging new mothers to stop smoking. The book also includes a host of practical features designed to provide a deeper understanding of the subject, including activities, reflective tools, and a glossary of key terms.

A Practical Guide to Outcome Evaluation will help to ensure the success of projects that make a difference to people's lives, and will be an essential reference for managers and practitioners working in people-orientated professions including social work, health, teaching, youth work, criminal justice, the arts and the emergency services.

Child Care in Practice

Writers' Workshops 2010

School of Sociology, Social Policy and Social Work,
Queen's University Belfast

Session 1: Thursday 13th May, 10.00 – 12.30

These workshops are designed to guide new authors in the development of their articles to a publishable standard. The cost of the first session is £25 and a free follow-up session is available to those participants who would like more specific guidance.

This workshop will appeal to all those who have undertaken or are supervising substantial pieces of research or practice that with a bit of effort and appropriate guidance, may be suitable for publication in Child Care in Practice. It will be particularly relevant to those who have recently achieved post qualifying awards or higher degrees. The workshop will be designed to support professionals from across all disciplines endeavouring to take the first steps towards the publication of their work.

The workshop is to be delivered by Dr Brian Taylor, School of Sociology and Applied Social Studies, University of Ulster and Dr Stan Houston, School of Sociology, Social Policy and Social Work, Queen's University Belfast.

The aim of the workshop is to offer clear guidance on how to get your work into publication and is a collaboration between Child Care in Practice, Queen's University Belfast and the University of Ulster.

Early booking is advised.

To secure your place please contact Cait on 02890975912 or e-mail childcareinpractice@qub.ac.uk

RECENT SUPERVISION SURVEY BY IASW SOUTHERN REGION

MANY THANKS to all IASW members and other practitioners who took the time to participate in our recent survey. Over 150 individuals completed the questionnaire and all of the data received is being currently analysed. It is hoped to publish a detailed report in an upcoming IASW newsletter. In the meantime here are some of the basic findings:

Respondents	Number	%
HSE Employed	107	68.6
Community & Voluntary	41	26.3
Other	8	5.1
Total	156

How often does it take place ?	Number	%
Weekly	2	1.28
Bimonthly	11	7.05
Monthly	90	57.69
Sporadic	40	25.64
Never !	9	5.77

Notably every single one of the participants added a comment in the final section about what they would like to see in terms of improving supervision practice. The content makes for very interesting reading and we hope to be able to publish this findings by the end of end of Summer in the The Irish Social Worker. Steven Peet and Orla Jennings, IASW Southern Branch

Postgraduate training for social workers

The Postgraduate Diploma in Advanced Fieldwork Practice and Supervision (Social Work) (2009-2010) in the School of Applied Social Studies, University College Cork

The Postgraduate Diploma in Advanced Fieldwork Practice and Supervision (Social Work) is the only nationally accredited, post qualifying course in social work. It has been running in the School of Applied Social Studies, UCC since 2001. It is a Level 9 academic programme, part-time and run on Fridays over the period from mid September to the end of May. Participants attend a formal lecture programme at the university two Fridays every month. Peer support and library study take place on alternative Fridays.

The aim of this programme is to prepare relatively new and experienced professionally qualified social workers for the task of practice teaching and supervision of social work students. This course offers a balance of theoretical inputs, experiential learning, self directed and library study. It involves on the job supervision of a professional social work student (MSW/BSW) while on placement, over a 14 week period (January-April).

The course team is committed to developing and supporting the philosophy and practice of reflective learning throughout the course. Providing participants with opportunities to reflect on their own practice and to reassess their own learning in the light of new knowledge and experience is an important focus throughout the course. In this regard, all participants are required to have supervised at least one social work student prior to entry onto the course

While on the course, participants are tutored and supervised. Group work is the main method of teaching and learning on the course and lecturers and tutors encourage participants to bring their practice experiences into the classroom thereby enriching the whole learning experience for all participants.

Evaluations of the course with course participants and graduates have informed us that the course has had a value and merit way beyond practice teaching and student supervision. Many of our past graduates have gone on to further study and others have been promoted within their agencies to team leader, senior practitioner and other senior positions.

As the reality of social work registration comes down the track, we believe this course will be an important one in terms of providing social workers with opportunities to pursue further professional studies. This course has an academic weighting of 60 credits.

Applications are invited from interested parties. Closing date for receipt of applications is 16th April 2010.
For more information and application forms please contact: Mary Ring at +353-21-4903546 or email mary.ring@ucc.ie
